Coffee Background

The marimba is Nicaragua's national instrument. It's particularly popular in the central and western parts of the country, like in the department of Jinotega, where this coffee was sourced from. The area is Nicaragua's largest coffee region, and altitudes here range from 1,300-1,700masl. The soil is rich with clay and volcanic ash, with plenty of natural canopy to provide shade over the coffee trees.

Arabica varieties of Bourbon, Caturra, Maracaturra, and Pacamara are common in Nicaragua, as is washed processing. Though Nicaraguan beans showcase a diverse range of aromas and flavors, the general characteristics of Nicaraguan beans are notes of citrus, chocolate, or caramel, with floral or nutty tones and bright acidity.

This coffee from Jinotega is full of milk chocolate and roasted peanut flavors in the cup, accented by hints of citrus, a bright acidity, and a light body.
