Coffee Background

Sourced from smallholder farmers across Uganda's central Luwero region, this Screen 18 Clean Robusta represents a refined, high grade expression of Uganda's most historic and economically important coffee species. Clean, dense, and carefully milled, it celebrates both the region's agricultural heritage and Kyagalanyi Coffee's quality focused approach to Robusta production.

Arabica vs Robusta coffee is a conversation that's hot - especially with the uptick in specialty Robusta coffees that's becoming more widely available from various coffee origins.

Around 80% of the coffee grown in Uganda is Coffea canephora, or Robusta coffee. The plant naturally contains more caffeine than Arabica coffee, making it more resistant to pests and diseases. The main advantage of growing Robusta over Arabica coffee is that Robusta thrives at lower altitudes and higher temperatures, with less effort required for cultivation.

While Robusta is often viewed through a commodity lens, these improved clonal lines have helped elevate Uganda's reputation for specialty grade Robusta with cleaner profiles and more consistency than traditional landrace varieties.
